At the Reginning of the Christian Era It Was Level with the Ocean. The Caspian sea lies eighty-five feet below the level of the Black sea, and is the greatest body of water in the world lying below the sea level. It is remarkable not only for this fact, but for the changes that have occurred in its level. About the First century of our era there is no doubt that the level of the sea stood eighty-five feet above its present horizon, and of course spread over a vastly more extensive area than at present. The Russian Geographical society has printed a treatise, written by N. M. Philipof, on these remarkable changes of level. Since the early part of the Christian era a general and grad-

He found that in the present century the level had steadily fallen, just as in the last century it many excellent qualities commend it had risen, causing great apprehension among the inhabitants of an inundation and giving rise to the belief in periodical variations every thirteen

Lerch, while in Baku in 1734 and 1747, found submerged buildings which had stood on dry land thirty years before, and he mentions a saying of the Persians that the sea rose and fell alternately every thirty years.

Mr. Philipof has made a special study of the whole question. Inquiring into the causes of these changes of level, he finds a variety of influences at work, such as wind driving the water toward certain coasts, temperature of the air causing in summer evaporation and consequent fall in level, and in winter cold producing a rise in level. Rivers rain and earthquakes are also among the active agencies, causing fluctuations from month to month and from day to day.-Goldthwaite's Geographical Magazine.

Safe Roof Building.

An architectural expert has recently given some sound advice in the mat ter of safe roof building. He premises that the true principle is, first, to understand what the purpose is in the building proposed, and to build to that purpose. The ordinary method of ON VISITING CARDS -- With a Knife. building should be reversed, and the roof planned first. The purpose of the roof is not merely to keep out rain, but it should also protect from changes of weather, fire, etc. The ordinary roof meets none of these points. The slate cracks easily under either heat or cold. admitting rain, attracting heat and inviting conflagration.

Some of the very best roofs are over the oldest factories, with solid framed, natched boards, covered with Himed mortar, upon which the shingles were laid. The ideal roof is nearly flat-an entirely flat roof will shed rain. The best way is to pitch the roof of industrial buildings toward the center, with a pitch of only half an inch to a foot, This carries the water away through a channel not exposed to frost, and admits of much better advantages in the matter of light in the upper story.-New York Commercial Advertiser.

Why Some People Married.

The reasons that some men give for having married some women are only to be surpassed by the reasons some women give for marrying some men. There was the man who married his wife because she was left handed, and it amused him to see her sew with the off hand, as he said. There was the young woman who married her husband because he was fat, and was so handy to sit on her books of autumn leaves in the fall and press them. Then there was another woman, presumably not so young, who finally married the man who had courted her faithfully for eleven years, because, as she after ward accounted for it, "he had wore his chair in their settin' room plumb out a settin' in it so many years, an' since the' hed to be a new one bought, she thought 'tmight as well be fur themselves, 'n' on their own account.'

A device that will enable a railroad employe to determine when a car oaded consistent with safety or with economical year has been a "long felt want" in railroad circles. An apparatus has been invented to supply this is likely to come into great favor. The device consists of two distinct parts, the upper part being attached to the truck, above the spring on the side of the car, while the other part is fixed below the spring. An adjustable pin is carried by the top part, and the bottom end of this touches an index finger that works over the dial of the bottom
